A FEW BRIEF NOTICES OF THE PRESS:

"The attempt is a bold one, none the less so because not a few similar enterprises have, in past times, ended in failure. We shall be glad to find this prove successful. It is national in its character, and quite in harmony with the commercial and intellectual activity of the times."—Globe, Toronto.

"It is sufficient to say that the new effort is made under new and more favourable auspices, and that the magazine bears upon it a fair assurance of success. The publishers should understand the nature of the task which they have undertaken, and are fully competent to its discharge."—Express, Toronto.

"Altogether, this first number of the magazine is highly creditable to Canadian talent, and fairly vindicates its right to the extensive patronage and support of the Canadian people."—Christian Guardian, Toronto.

"Taking the CANADIAN MONTHLY as a whole, we are most struck with the national spirit which breathes through its pages. No mere reproduction of English tone and language, it is instinct with thought, the product of lives lived on another soil, and fresh with vigorous and new feelings. It is loyal, but it is not English, still less is it American (Yankee we should say); quietly yet firmly it exhibits Canadian views of passing events. It will say little for Canadian patriotism should this MONTHLY fail to be supported, as the original matter, paper, and general appearance are equal to any English magazine, and the price as low as any American."—Church Herald, Toronto.

"Such a magazine as the CANADIAN MONTHLY is calculated to make an educational and intellectual advancement in the country, and ought to be supported by all men who have any pretensions to be thought readers."—Daily News, Montreal.

"Up to the present time Canadian literature has been a barren field, and the rewards it offered native talent of too slender a nature to encourage exertion. That this state of things is fast passing away, the magazine before us is a good indication, and we predict for it, not only success, but a large and increasing sphere of usefulness."—Citizen, Ottawa.

"It will be a national calamity if THE MONTHLY ever loses its present high tone and impartiality in the discussion of native subjects."—Mail, Toronto.
